Consequences of a breach of obligations on the part of the insured

A breach of the obligations specified in the insurance policy, terms and conditions or in the law may result in claim settlement being reduced, not provided or rejected, and in the event of third-party liability insurance, it may constitute the obligation to pay the indemnity that the insurer paid to the aggrieved party.

Role of the policyholder and the insured person

You do not take this insurance out directly with an insurer, but rather by acceding to a master insurance agreement made between us, Česká spořitelna, a.s. as the policyholder and Kooperativa pojišťovna, a.s., Vienna Insurance Group as the insurer with its registered office at Pobřežní 665/21, Praha 8.

Thanks to this form of insurance, also referred to as group insurance, we can offer you attractive terms and conditions under the master insurance agreement. However, you do not have the rights or obligations of a policyholder; in particular, you cannot individually set or change the insurance conditions (the terms and conditions are fixed by the master insurance agreement) or terminate the master insurance agreement.

Although you are not entering into an individual insurance agreement with an insurer, instead acceding to our master insurance agreement as the insured, your position as the insured is not changing. As such, you have the right to claim settlement except in the event of death when the right to the claim settlement inures to the ultimate beneficiary. You can exercise your right to claim settlement vis-à-vis the insurer directly in court without the need for our assistance as the policyholder.

As the insured, you have the option of exercising your rights as a consumer with authorities for out-of-court dispute resolution. Of course, as our insured client you will always receive information on changes in terms and conditions in good time. The current master insurance agreement and the applicable terms and conditions are available at www.erstepremier.cz.

The cover cannot be taken out individually, and it is governed by the law of the Czech Republic.
